Touring Music City

The 2019 Garden Centers of America Summer Tour explored independent garden centers in and around Nashville, Tennessee. Here's a look at some additional highlights from the trip.

By Teresa McPherson

From June 23-26, the GCA Summer Tour explored a variety of independent garden centers in the Nashville area. Take a look at these highlights from the tour.

Moore & Moore Garden Center Nashville, Tennessee

The Coco Hut at Moore & Moore provides a convenient place to store coconut fiber materials, as well as a prime location to display potted green goods.

Edibles are displayed in front of a "Cultivating Lifestyles" banner.

A whimsical sign points customers to the cart storage.

Yarrow Acres
Franklin, Tennessee

Located on Main Street in downtown Franklin, Tennessee, Yarrow Acres uses a chalkboard sign to beckon customers inside.

Limited space means relying on clever uses of space to display their wares, like this ladder shelf for green goods.

A yellow armoire provides a cozy home for pollinator products.

Martin's Home & Garden
Murfreesboro, Tennessee

Succulents continue to be a top-seller, and Martin's dedicated a large table to succulents potted in lightweight concrete containers.

Martin's has been in operation for 37 years. A wall near checkout displays photos of the Martin family

An armoire houses pet treats and supplies.

FROM THE ROAD

Long Hollow Gardens and Vineyards
Gallatin, Tennessee

Situated on 35 acres, Long Hollow combines a garden center with event space and a vineyard.

A chalkboard sign inside displays the numerous causes that the IGC supports.

Long Hollow Gardens & Vineyards declares their independence on the entryway sign.
